The Woodwind Choir at Truman State University

Background:

This is a student led organization in their first year as a U&I chartered organization. They are not requesting funding for a specific event, but rather start up costs. The Woodwind Choir is requesting $650 in order to reimburse students, start a bank account, pay for commission pieces, and copying fees.

Decision:

The committee has decided that paying start up costs is not the purpose of this committee, as well as reimbursing students for money that has already been spent. As the funding is not for an event, this falls out of our purview. We recommend to deny funding but hope the new organization is the best of luck with their fundraising.

Serve Center Service Trip

Background:

The Serve Center is sending six people to Colorado during Spring break in order to volunteer in a community garden and an elementary school, among other things. They are asking for $500 in order to fund their Airbnb stays while in Colorado.

Decision:

The committee feels as though this event will not benefit Truman outside of those six individuals attending. The committee also did not want to set the precedent of funding Spring Break trips, as many groups do similar trips. Along with the Student Government's general distaste for sending individuals on trips, the committee is recommending denying funding.
